"Traces of Mind Control from Cold War America"

Exploring the Challenges of International Digital Humanities Initiatives

March 21-22, 2013

Conference Room, Benham Gateway, Bryn Mawr College

Thursday, March 21, 2013

9:30am-10:00am       Coffee

10:00am-11:00am     Keynote:      Michael O'Malley, George Mason University, Associate Director Center for History and New Media

"Direction in International Digital Humanities Initiatives –Where Do We Stand Now?"

11:00am-11:15am     Break

11:15am-12:30pm     Presenting the "Traces of Mind Control" Website Site Introduction
Sharon Ullman, Bryn Mawr College
Cheryl Klimaszewski, Bryn Mawr College
Olaf Stieglitz, Free University, Berlin

"Putting the Traces Concept into Practice - Benefits and Challenges"
Nina Mackert, Erfurt University
Jan Taubitz, Erfurt University
Robert Fischer, Erfurt University

12:30pm- 2:00pm      Lunch Break

2:00pm-4:00pm      Doing the Undoable: Session I - Making "Traces" a Reality
Nadya Azoumi, Erfurt University
Cheryl Klimaszewski, Bryn Mawr College
Archana Kaku, Bryn Mawr College
Sharon Ullman, Bryn Mawr College
Mike Tedeschi, Interactive Mechanics

4:30pm-6:00pm      Wine and Cheese Reception

Friday, March 22, 2013

9:30am-10:00am      Coffee

10:00am-12:30pm      Doing the Undoable: Session II - Realizing Digital Visions Across the Disciplines – a Roundtable

Christine Atiyeh, Kutztown University
"'Re-excavating' Carthage: Digitization and Online Publication of the White Fathers' Archive"
Tim Burke, Swarthmore College
Cheryl Klimaszewski, Bryn Mawr College
Camilla MacKay, Bryn Mawr College
Alicia Walker, Bryn Mawr College
"'Consulting' on an Interdisciplinary Database from Byzantine Lead Seals"

12:45pm-1:30pm      Closing remarks
Sharon Ullman, Bryn Mawr College
 Olaf Stieglitz, Free University, Berlin
Juergen Martschukat, Erfurt University